Welcome to Module 3, "Canadian Code for Volunteer Involvement (CCVI)". In this module, you will learn how the code has established standards that help not-for-profit organizations accomplish their goals by effectively engaging people's talents and skills, and by increasing organizational capacity.

Topics covered will include the three main components of the code. These components include value of volunteer involvement, guiding principles, and standards of practice.

Through these topics, you will learn how the code's framework and how the standards of practice laid out in the code supports organizations, staff and volunteers, who have a role to play in ensuring successful and sustainable community service.
