

Video 18.2 And so I've got the house here as the idea that like buying a house, there's certain features that make it great, just like what attracts us to certain sports. And over time you need some renovations to enhance the house's features and build upon the foundation. We need to keep things that are hard to replace, and in good condition. There's no reason to tear the whole thing down and start over. The unique traits need to be retained and history honoured.
